

The Dangers of Ethical Fading in the Workplace
Sarah Ertelt

Explain in your own words what “ethical fading” is. Can you give an example?

How can you tell when a situation involves an ethical question rather than a personal, financial, or social one? What are the telltale signs?

Do you think someone can be morally culpable for making the wrong choice if they did not even realize the choice was a moral one? Why or why not?

If someone is subject to self-deception, are they really responsible for their choices?